

My goal is to transmit joy with story...

Dear Teachers,

I'm an author and storyteller, and I'm going to be coming to your school.

I hope that my program is not an interruption, but will be a fun event that supports your teaching. I often tell teachers, "I don't know what you need, so please ask me leading questions." You can also email me in advance. (mark@transmitjoy.com)

Depending on the program, I will be reading stories, telling stories, answering questions, and perhaps doing a workshop. The stories will be adjusted by grade level, so if you can attend more than one session, you'll likely hear a different set.

Ideally, my in-school work is both educational and entertaining for your students—and you too. Aside from transmitting the joy of writing, reading, listening and telling stories, I frequently emphasize the time it takes to revise a piece, the importance of reading widely and the power of language to communicate ideas.

If you get a moment, take a look at my body of books and audio, and at the teacher's guides on my website (<http://transmitjoy.com/teacher-guides/>).

Thanks so much!

Mark Binder

P.S. If you'd like to buy books, I will have them available for $10 each. (Cheaper than Amazon!) I'll sign them and will give you or email you a receipt for your taxes.
